The most common areas in the sentence correction section which are required to be polished include: sentence structure errors, subject-verb agreement errors, verb tense errors, preposition errors, pronoun errors and idiomatic errors.

Sentence Correction Tips
First look carefully at the given sentence.
Check for subject - verb agreement, if the subject is singular verb should be singular and if the subject is plural verb must satisfy it.

Example: A bouquet of roses lend colour and fragrance to the room. (Incorrect)
A bouquet of roses lends colour and fragrance to the room. (Correct)

My dog always growl at the postman. (Incorrect)
My dog always growls at the postman. (Correct)

Either Grandpa or my sisters is going to the park. (Incorrect)
Either Grandpa or my sisters are going to the park. (Correct)

Either my sisters or Grandpa are going to the park. (Incorrect)
Either my sisters or Grandpa is going to the park. (Correct)

Note: In the last two sentences the verb must be decided based on the closest subject, if the closest subject is plural verb must be plural and if the closest subject is singular, verb must be singular.

As far as verb tense errors are concerned non-native speakers generally make two frequent errors with irregular verbs. They either add an incorrect 'ed' to the end of an irregular verb or accidentally interchange the simple past and past participle. Observe the sentence given below:

Example: Jack feeled like swimming yesterday, so he putted his bathing suit and drived to the pool.
Observe the wrong usage of the verbs 'feeled', 'putted' and 'drived' which should be used as 'felt', 'put' and 'drove'.

Apart from paying attention to verb forms another point to bear in mind is not to switch from one tense to another unless the timing of an action demands. Keep verb tense consistent in sentences. Do not change tenses when there is no time change for the action.

Example: During the movie, John stood up and then drops his popcorn. (Incorrect)
During the movie, John stood up and then dropped his popcorn. (Correct)

When Mary walks into a room, everyone will stare. (Incorrect)
When Mary walks into a room, everyone stares. (Correct)

Note: In the first sentence since there is no indication that the actions happened apart from one another; there is no reason to shift the tense of the second verb. In the second example Mary walks into a room at times. The action is habitual present. The second action happens when the first one does. Therefore, the second verb should be used in present as well.

Check for preposition errors. There are 2 major rules when it comes to the use of prepositions.
1. The first major rule deals with preposition choice. Certain prepositions must follow certain words, and the correct preposition must be used to make relationships between words in the sentences clear.
2. The second major rule deals with the prepositions place in the sentence. Prepositions must be followed by nouns, and prepositions can only go on the end of the sentence in certain situations.

Example: This material is superior than that. (Incorrect)
This material is superior to that. (Correct)

She married to/with her boss. (Incorrect)
She married her boss. (Correct)

This resembles to that. (Incorrect)
This resembles that. (Correct)

- Whenever you use a pronoun, make sure that it has the same person, number, and gender as its antecedent.
• See the word, "which," when "which" introduces a clause (called an adjective clause), make sure that the clause introduced by "which" immediately follows the noun idea it modifies. Just as an adjective must describe a noun, so an adjective clause must describe a noun.

Example:
It is I who is sorry. (Incorrect)
It is I who am sorry. (Correct)

Note: When who refers to a personal pronoun (I, you, he, she, we, they), it takes the verb that agrees with that pronoun.

Example:
Please give it to John or myself. (Incorrect)
Please give it to John or me. (Correct)

Note: Don’t use myself unless the pronoun I or me precedes it in the sentence.

• If a sentence is about some sort of numerical quantity (ex. "the percentage of illiterates in Mahaboobnagar" or "the number of women studying Sanskrit") check for idio-matic errors (remember: "fewer" describes a countable quantity, like people; "less" describes an uncountable quantity, like sugar).

Example:
There are less pieces of cheese on this plate. (Incorrect)
There are fewer pieces of cheese on this plate. (Correct)

There are less crows in Hyderabad than there used to be. (Incorrect)
There are fewer crows in Hyderabad than there used to be. (Correct)

In future, there will be less coins in circulation. (Incorrect)
In future, there will be fewer coins in circulation. (Correct)

• Make sure that the items compared make sense while using the words "as," "than," and "like".
